Entered at the Post-Office at Jefferson, Texas, as second-class mail matter.

This paper is mailed regularly to its subscribers until a definite order to discontinue is received and all arrears are paid in full.

When will the congressional and state campaign open up in this section?

The Daily Paragon, from Amarilla, has reached us. Mrs. R. W. Morgan, its managing editor, is well remembered here at her former home.

We have received the Madill Democrat, Jesse Hall's new paper at Madill, I. T. It is a newsy, five-column folio. We wish him unbounded success.

The iron span over Black Cypress at Moseley's bridge has been completed and accepted. This makes two iron bridges built by the County this year. It certainly is a great improvement on the old bridges. It is more economical.

The Fort Worth Record has offered to print free of charge, want ads of cotton pickers wanted by farmers or communities during September. To insert ad three times in daily and once in semi-weekly Record; ad not to exceed 25 words. All farmers in need of cotton pickers should take advantage of this offer.

Col W. G. Sterrett, having secured photographs of the devil fish and others caught, now say no fish story goes without it is verified by photos—no picture drawn by hand counts in corroborating a fish story. The Col. is evident a Missourian as he must be shown. Wonder how the Col. stands on the Jonah-whale story? No photos to demonstrate or prove it. We often wondered why the whale did not digest the unfortunate Jonah. Could it have been Jonah was short on soap and bath water? The Col. knows that a camera is next thing to a well trained newspaper man for staying square with the truth—fish story or not. So under the late ruling by the Col. no fish story need be sent in unless photos accompany the narrative as a corroboration of the tale. It is wrong for the Col. to be so cruel as to deprive the boys of the privilege of drawing on their imagination. Judging from the shape of the Sterrett devilfish's mouth it must have been that species which tackled Jonah instead of the whale. Had the boys seen that fish's mouth first! then no doubt that unfortunate devilfish would be roaming the briny deep now. It was evident a case of the bear and the man—"here we come darn our hides."

"I look forward to the complete rehabilitation of your city. In time the Cypress river and the lakes will be opened for the navigation and water rates will prevail here. Railroads will be extended in all directions, and the fruit and vegetable business will grow into dimensions which cannot be estimated; Jefferson becoming the point of concentration and shipment. No finer soil and climate can be found and the markets for its product will expand with the immense supply. The people of this section of the state especially should pull together to secure the building of such railroads, and discourage every prejudice among the people which in the least degree deters them from coming into and developing the country."—Judge V. W. Grubbs in last issue of the JIMPLECUTE.

The JIMPLECUTE is delighted to know that there is one man living in the prairie section of the State who understands and appreciates the vast benefit and the importance of improving the waterways leading to Jefferson, thereby giving a water point within the state. It is true the Judge did not enter in the detail advantages which would accrue to that portion of the State, tributary to the water point. While the Judge only touched on the fruit and vegetable question, yet all farm products would be greatly benefited; the benefit will be so great that actual demonstrations will have to be made for those benefited to comprehend it. The saving to the country within 100 miles of the water point will be something near ONE MILLION dollars each year. This is approximately the estimate placed on the saving by so high an authority as Commissioner Colquitt. Judge Grubbs did not touch on the great wealth producing raw material, with which this section abounds—iron ore. In every section of the country where iron ore is found and developed, the country is not only in a prosperous and healthy financial condition, but wealth is accumulating rapidly. Another advantage a water point has is the congregating of manufactures, because of the cheap rates, both on raw material and products of the plants. No enterprising man ever opposes the building of railroads. No one can assign any good reason why railroads should not be built; it would appear as reasonable and sane to oppose civilization as to oppose building of railroads. No section of the country is regarded as enjoying the high state of civilization as the section interspersed with railroads. No better indication of the prosperity or the prospective prosperity of a country than for railroads to seek to build through it. The JIMPLECUTE is glad that Jefferson can number among its friends one so influential as Judge Grubbs. He has rendered more efficient service to the educational interests of the State than perhaps any leading man in the State. While the Judge has rendered invaluable service to the great cause of education, yet the JIMPLECUTE questions if he follows up the question of a water point within Northeast Texas, that he will not have from a financial standpoint by leading the people to fully understand and appreciate the prosperity to be gained by reason of the waterpoint equally as great as ever.

Those who can should hold their cotton. Do not forget more people are using cotton goods today throughout the world than ever before. Each year increases the demand for the goods. The world is looking to the South for the raw material—use some system and judgment about selling. If this is done a higher price will be had. Glut the market and you play into the hands of the speculator, and the prices will surely go down.

HUSBAND HELD.

Claims Wife Fell Down Stairway and Knife Killed Her.

Natchez, Miss., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Jennie Goldstein, aged forty-three years, died under suspicious circumstances, and a coroner's jury, after an investigation of several hours, charged her husband, Abe Goldstein, with her murder. Coroner Ducrow committed the man to jail without the benefit of bail. The woman was the mother of seven children and enclente at the time of her death. Late Monday night the couple engaged in a quarrel, and it is alleged he stabbed her in the left side, the knife entering just below the short ribs, and penetrating the spleen.

Goldstein claims she fell down the stairway while carrying a tray of food, and fell on a bread knife, which had fallen from the tray.
